donation was made to the Relief Fund and she was given a monument statue portraying her. Kimball started her talk with memories of her days at BYU and said, "I have some sense of what a great part of this institution and that you count in learning and in making spiritual growth, she said, 'The Lord and women alike to grow in the most important knowledge a person has is the knowledge of the Savior, she added. 'I want people need to remember, she said, 'I am a process, not an event.' 'I want that process is service, and Sister Kimball said, 'I want husbands and wives, parents and children to have duty and opportunity of each other.' 'I want small children in the home, a preeminent the importance of her work, she asserted. 'At a time, Sister Kimball said, when we are choosing a career in home and away from the home, we need to make the strengthening of the family concern.' 'In the family, the next priority should be the members. Sister Kimball said that an often fill voids left in people's lives of the extended family unit in a city. She emphasized that 'from an it does not matter where we serve,

In order to give effective service to family and neighbors, one must develop himself to his full potential, she said. This can be done through study, reading, travel and having an integrated personality. The pursuit of knowledge is a part of the gospel plan for saints, she said. Reading from the Doctrine and Covenants, she emphasized that people must seek learning and expand their interests. 'Forget self pity and look for mountains to climb,' she said. 'Everyone has problems. The challenge is to cope with those problems and get our full measure of joy from life.' She told students not to get discouraged now because most of their reading is textbooks. 'They are keys that open doors, windows that open on life.' Beyond reading, 'learning means keeping the mind open to all kinds of experience.' She said this includes traveling, being able to get close to people and feel their needs. 'The first fundamental need of every person is the indispensability of love to every human being, the feeling of being of value to others. Our interdependence with others is the most encompassing fact of human reality. We need each other.' She said it is important that a person achieves a wholeness of the mind and spirit, but to achieve this depends on the efforts exerted to accomplish this. 'The chief limitations confronting us are not age or sex or race or money. They are laziness, short-sightedness and lack of self-esteem,' she said. 'You can learn rewardingly by attaining and preserving the joy of learning and serving, combined.' In gaining all the other knowledge which enriches life, Sister Kimball said, 'let us not forget to include the knowledge of the Gospel of Jesus Christ.'

Natural gas transfer to aid frozen East

WASHINGTON (AP) — Acting quickly under the new emergency natural gas law, the Federal Power Commission ordered the first transfer of gas from west to east Thursday to aid shortage-stricken pipelines and their customers. FPC Chairman Richard L. Dunham told a news conference the gas already had started flowing. He said it should take only a few hours to start aiding eastern states with severe gas shortages but only to a relatively small degree. The diverted gas had been intended for Oregon and Washington but is now heading to the East, he said. Dunham said the commission is looking for other additional gas supplies, and has laid an offer from the state of California and is working on possible gas injections from Mexico and Canada. Diplomatic sources in Mexico City said Mexico will sell 40 million cubic feet of gas a day to the United States, beginning next week. The FPC official said that although natural gas travels through pipelines at around 20 miles an hour, the emergency sales and transfers of gas can provide almost immediate relief thousands of miles away, without waiting for emergency gas to move, physically, through the entire length of the pipeline. In some cases, in fact, the emergency gas may never travel the full distance but, instead, will be traded to serve more local needs, freeing other gas supplies farther up the line. This process is called 'displacement' and can bring shortage-relief far away in a matter of hours or minutes. White House Press Secretary Jody Powell said administration officials are looking for ways to assess natural gas industry reports on profits and reserves to determine the extent of any national fuel shortage. Government energy agencies now rely on industry-supplied data to measure U.S. natural gas resources. Asked if Carter doubted those industry figures, Powell replied: "You have to question, not in a perjorative sense, a whole range of assumptions and facts" when dealing with the energy shortage. Frank Ikard, president of the American Petroleum Institute, later said the industry figures are, "as complete as possible and unbiased." In the past, checks by government agencies "have confirmed the accuracy" of industry estimates of petroleum reserves, Ikard said.

Turnout large for conference Eastern shortage

By JANET HODGES
Universe Staff Writer

A large turnout Thursday for the ASBYU Women's Conference forced a new room scheduling for today's and Saturday's sessions. Dianne Curtis, ASBYU Women's vice president, said she expected 2,000 to register but the room scheduling was arranged according to last year's conference turnout. Even with only 1,000 registering Thursday, she said the rooms had to be changed to accommodate all those who wanted to attend the workshops. Miss Curtis said the schedule for the remainder of the conference, with room changes, is as follows: Judith Rasmussen Dushku will give today's keynote address at 10 a.m. in the ELWC Main Ballroom. She is presenting a speech entitled "Emmeline B. Wells, At Last." Emmeline Wells was the first editor of Exponent Magazine and organizer of the wheat storage program.

By The Associated Press

A new winter storm dropped snow on several areas in the Midwest and East on Thursday, as extra supplies of natural gas began moving toward the region to ease the energy crunch caused by the cold. The worst of the frigid weather seemed over in some areas, but the after effects lingered. Officials said plant closings and layoffs, now involving up to two million persons, could last until spring. Federal authorities worked to allocate natural gas according to where it was needed most, following enactment of emergency energy legislation. The gas started flowing even before the bill's signing. It moves at only 15 miles per hour, but will reach cold weather areas faster than the speed would indicate.

The industrial cutbacks, caused by the curtailment of natural gas to businesses, will not be eased by the extra fuel since that will be used to supply high-priority customers such as homes and hospitals. The emergency legislation passed by Congress allows interstate pipelines in the United States to temporarily buy some natural gas at higher rates prevailing in intrastate markets. Spokesmen for several utilities said, however, that they did not expect consumers' gas bills to increase sharply because of the higher prices. "We sell so much gas that high prices on a little more won't make that much difference when it is averaged in with the rest," said Reif, who predicted a maximum hike of 7 per cent for customers.

Man's relationship with eagles will be topic of Tuesday forum

The Tuesday forum assembly topic will feature the ancient alliance between men and eagles. An expert on eagles, Dr. Joseph R. Murphy, BYU zoology professor, will consider the history and future of the eagle. He will also explain the myths and legends involving the eagle, and the bird's use as a religious and political symbol. Dr. Murphy's special area of research is the ecology of predatory birds. He has written articles on this and other related subjects, and they have appeared in more than 20 professional journals. In his address, Dr. Murphy will point out the paradoxical history of the eagle: along with the honor and respect given to the bird, abuse, intolerance, and persecution have been a problem for it, especially when the eagle appeared to be in conflict with human activities. The future survival of the eagle, as well as other forms of wildlife, will largely depend upon the maintenance of appropriate habitats, Dr. Murphy believes.

Appeal of Four Seasons okay Inheritance tax bill awaits regional office decision passes in Senate

The appeal to reverse the go-ahead on the Four Seasons ski resort filed by a BYU professor has been sent to the Regional Forester in Ogden for a final decision, according to Uinta National Forest officials. According to Jerome Gelock, recreation officer for the forest service, the introduction of the appeal, filed by W. R. Lichity, a BYU Botany teacher, was reviewed by the Uinta office, who answered the questions Lichity brought up in the appeal. The appeal was filed to halt plans for the Four Seasons ski resort which has been proposed to be built east of Provo. Developers of the multi-million resort had won a preliminary go-ahead from foresters to begin construction in November. However, the potential development has been stalled by the introduction of Lichity's suit, along with another suit filed by a 19-year-old man from Salt Lake City. Gelock said he could not speculate on the time involved for the regional forester to reach a decision on the case.

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Utah Senate passed an inheritance tax relief bill Thursday morning which, if approved in the House and signed by the governor, would make the state's death tax among the lowest in the nation. The bill, which passed the Senate 21-7, would cut the state tax to the federal inheritance tax. Instead of taking its own cut from an estate, Utah would receive a portion of the federal tax. Six states have similar statutes. The measure's sponsor, Sen. Charles Bullen, R-Logan, said, "If passed, this would be worth the total time I've spent in the legislature."

Elder Monson to give speech

Elder Thomas S. Monson of the Council of the Twelve will speak at the Twelve-Stake Fireside Sunday. The fireside, under the direction of the BYU Seventh Stake with Pres. Paul R. Cheesman presiding, will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Marriott Center. Elder Monson is currently a member of the Missionary Executive Committee and an adviser to the Internal Communications Committee of the Church. Named to the Council of the Twelve Apostles on Oct. 4, 1963, Elder Monson had served as president of the Canadian Mission from 1959 to 1962, in the presidency of the Salt Lake Temple View Stake and as a bishop in that stake. Born in Salt Lake City on Aug. 21, 1927, he is the son of G. Spencer and Gladys Condie Monson. He attended the Salt Lake public schools and graduated cum laude from the University of Utah in 1948. Later he received his Masters of Business Administration from BYU. Elder Monson served in the U.S. Navy during World War II.

Elder Monson became associated with the Desert News after receiving his degree in business. He eventually became affiliated with the Desert News Press. He served as general manager there until his appointment to the Twelve. He is currently vice president of the Deseret News Publishing Company. Elder Monson is a member of the board of Trustees of BYU and is a member of the Utah State Board of Higher Education. He married Frances Beverly Johnson on Oct. 7, 1948. They are the parents of three children.

Suspects arraigned on bogus bill charge

Suspects in a $5 million counterfeiting raid made in Orem Wednesday are out on bail, after being arraigned on counterfeiting charges in U.S. District Court.

According to Anthony Sherman, agent in charge of the Salt Lake City office of the United States Secret Service, John Thornton Richardson, a former Orem City employee, and his daughter, Venla Richardson, were released on bail after arraignment before the U.S. Magistrate Wednesday morning.

Sherman said the two were charged with making a photograph of U.S. currency and possession of counterfeit money.

Sherman said federal agents made a raid Wednesday and confiscated a negative of a $20 note, along with counterfeiting operations.

The arrest, in Salt Lake City, led agents to the location of the Orem money, according to Sherman.

Sherman said the bogus money seized in the Orem raid consisted of counterfeit $50 bills, however, he declined to say how federal agents were led to the money.

The raid was connected with the discovery of a campfire used to destroy counterfeiting plates and paper west of Utah Lake about two weeks ago, according to Sherman. Evidence recovered from the campfire led them to the counterfeiting operation, Sherman added.

Sherman declined to comment on what evidence led them to the operation, citing upcoming hearings as the reason for the silence. The investigation was led by agent Robert Greene, he added.

Porno control preferred local

SALT LAKE CITY

(AP) — Gov. Scott Matheson says a bill that would create a three-member panel to license all public films shown in Utah runs counter to his philosophy of how to deal with pornography.

In an interview Wednesday in the governor's office, Matheson said such a panel would impose state review while he favors local control.

"I believe in local, vigorous control," Matheson said of anti-pornography efforts.

He said he agrees with the U.S. Supreme Court ruling allowing local communities to set their own standards for decency.

Idaho officials say final statement about lobby law violations due soon

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — An Idaho official said Thursday he's hopeful a decision can be made by next week whether an official of the LDS Church violated Idaho's lobbyist registration laws.

Chief Deputy Secretary of State Ben Ysura received earlier in the day a letter from Elder Boyd K. Packer, responding to an allegation that he violated an Idaho law by lobbying without first registering.

"By tomorrow, we hope to have the letter analyzed and send the information to the attorney general," said Ysura.

"After he comments on it, we hope to have a final statement by the first of next week."

Elder Packer appeared at a Pocatello rally Jan. 8 against the Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

A Boise woman filed an official complaint against Elder Packer, alleging he engaged in lobbying, since the issue is before the Idaho Legislature.

Elder Packer, in his letter to Ysura, said he was only using "a proper exercise of that freedom of speech and freedom of religion which should be accorded to all who are favored to live in this great land."

Ysura said he asked the church official to declare whether he was paid to lobby and to clarify two other areas concerning exercise of freedom of religion.

Agent will talk on computers

A Special Agent of the FBI will lecture on the use of computers in criminal investigations Tuesday.

Robert Davenport, assistant special agent in charge of the Salt Lake City office of the FBI, will speak from 3:10-5 p.m. in A-150 JKBA, according to John Gibbons of the computer science department.

Davenport will conduct a discussion on the role of computers in daily criminal investigations of the FBI.

Beginning February 6, Extended Area Service comes to Utah Valley

Extended Area Service will greatly expand local calling boundaries. It establishes three calling corridors within the county. All the calls you make to people living within your corridor will be toll-free. You'll dial as you would for any local call. (Do not dial "1".)

As you can see from the map, the northern corridor will link people in Lehi, American Fork and Pleasant Grove with people in Orem and Provo.

The middle corridor will link people in Santaquin, Payson and Spanish Fork with people in Springville, Provo and Orem.

The third corridor will connect people in Goshen with people in Spanish Fork, Payson and Santaquin. Calls outside these corridors such as Lehi to Spanish Fork or Payson to Pleasant Grove will still be long distance calls.

Extended Area Service cost about $2.35 million over the past 20 months to improve facilities and add the new equipment needed to establish Utah County Network. Because you will be able to dial so many more telephones without toll or there will be an increase in monthly rates in community except Springville.

If you have any questions about Extended Area Service, please refer to the insert you receive with your January bill, or call your Mountain Bell business office.

Their bid was $12,792,430.

The Central Utah Water Conservancy District is preparing to ask for bids for the construction of a new water purification plant. This plant will be the first of its kind in the state of Utah.

When completed, the plant will be located on a

The purpose of the plant will be to purify the runoff water which comes from the high Uintahs, so it can be used by the population of Utah Valley.

It is estimated that one household uses 1,600

The U.S. Bureau of Reclamation and the District through additional studies, verify the requirements of completed by 1979 and should be able to meet the

Burns criticizes $50 rebate

WASHINGTON — Federal Reserve Board Chairman
Arthur Burns said Thursday he will cooperate with President Carter and Congress in encouraging faster economic growth and reduced unemployment this year.

However, Burns told the House Banking Committee he doesn't think Carter's $31-billion economic program will make much difference to the economy, which he contended should grow quite well without it.
And he termed Carter's plan to give a $50 rebate to most Americans "an inefficient way to stimulate the economy."

burn it in your own stove and fireplace.

If you live near one of the nation's 154 national off the winter chills and save on precious natural gas and oil.

The U.S. Forest Service says anyone can have the free wood as long as he or she checks first with local forest officials and gets a permit. Owen T. Jamison of the Agriculture Department agency said the permits are free and are available from district ranger offices at each national forest.

Y clubs aid conservation

By PATTY BROWN
Universe Staff Writer

ASBYU and BYU service clubs are helping conservationists with the paper recycling program.

Four boxes have been placed on campus by the Organizations Office for students to place used newspapers in, according to Steve Johnson, administrative advisor of the ASBYU Organizations Office.

Straighten Papers

During the day, members of the BYU service clubs straighten newspapers in these boxes and move them to a storage shed on the south side of the Wilkinson Center, he said.

Clubs participating this year include Alpha Phi Omega and the Star Trek Club. "Last year we were fortunate to have Sigma Epsilon, Orson Hyde and Intercollegiate Knights help out too. We hope this year we can get enough clubs to help so we can have two-week shifts for each until the end of the semester," Johnson said.

Every two weeks the Conservation Club takes the papers out of the on-campus storage shed and takes it to the recycling plant in Orem. There it is turned into insulation, packing material, or recycled into more paper.

Service Project

The boxes, made as a service project last summer by the "Benevolent Door Knob Society," presently known as the "University Design Group," are located in four major locations.

Boxes are at the Wilkinson Center north entrance, the Harold B. Lee Library north entrance, the south entrance of the Administration Building and the north entrance of the Joseph Smith Building.

"Each club netted over $100 for their hard work last semester," Johnson said. "We are dependent on students donating their used papers into these boxes, since money is earned by the tonnage of paper brought to the recycling plant."

Ed Drury, a graduate student in civil engineering from Kensington, MD., places a newspaper in the recycling boxes.

Missouri records sought by library

By ANTONE CLARK
Universe Staff Writer

The J. Reuben Clark Law Library is attempting to obtain early Missouri law records involving Mormons.

Acquisition of the records will be done in cooperation with the Genealogical Society, said Harold Dees, director of documents for the Law Library. The project would be photocopied by genealogists already in Missouri, said Dees. "We have to receive permission from the Missouri State Historical Society to obtain the records," he said.

"The Genealogical Society would not be going out of their way to photocopy the records and they are willing to cooperate with us."

"We would like to pick up all the records from 1855 to 1850 in not only the state of Missouri but all other states where the Mormons were gathered at that time," Dees added.

The library already has early court reports, session laws and governor's letter books from Missouri. "In our present collection of early Mormon law records Missouri is the weakest. We'd like to photocopy their house and senate journals," Dees said. "It would certainly add to our collection."

The Law Library has also accumulated various records involving Mormons from the states of New York, Ohio and Illinois. Collections of early LDS records from Illinois include house and senate journals, state codes, governor's letter books and records from Hancock County.

Internships need people

Two hundred students are needed for internship projects during 1977.

The internship projects, developed by the Western Interstate Commission for Higher Education (WICHE), are aimed at enriching the educational experience of students by enabling them to do professional, action-research projects with public agencies.

At the same time, the program provides community non-profit or governmental agencies with valuable talent for specific tasks and problems.

Students accepted for the projects will work for about 12 weeks under the supervision of their sponsoring agencies. Educational grants of $100 per week will also be awarded.

Students in the program will be expected to complete their projects and also an acceptable professional report for the employing agency.

More color for Banyan

More color and better organization are some improvements being made on the Banyan this year, according to its editor.

Dave Marks, Banyan editor, said the book will have 416 pages, including 80 pages of color.

The Banyan will be organized into three sections to correspond with fall, late fall and winter registration, Marks said.

Each college in the university and also ASBYU student government will have a section in the book.

Week planned for engineering

Engineering Week, scheduled for Feb. 22-24, will feature four contests that are open to all interested students.

According to Raymond Eelsing, Engineering Week chairman, the contest categories are disengaging a bomb, constructing a boat that runs on Alka-Seltzer fizz power, constructing a bridge from three ounces of balsa wood and constructing a bobby-pin propelled vehicle.

"All entries will be Engineering Week," Eelsing said.

"Cash prizes of $25 will be awarded respectively, first, second and third in each of the four contests are open according to Eelsing, all students are more than participants."

"EAGLES AND MEN: AN ANCIENT ALLIANCE"

TUESDAY 8 FEBRUARY
MARRIOTT CENTER - 10 a.m.

"Eagles and Men: An Ancient Alliance" is the title of the Forum address to be presented by Joseph R. Murphy on February 8. In this address he will concentrate on a discussion of a definite phase of human cultural history rather than emphasizing biology of eagles as such. He will begin with a brief description of the kinds and distribution of eagles throughout the world and show slides of representative types.

"The earliest human contacts with eagles as a symbol of courage and power will be explored, beginning with ancient civilizations, including Biblical references to the eagle. The utilization of the eagle as a symbol in human culture will then be traced through the period of ancient Rome and the early cultures of the Americas. North American Indian traditions in respect to eagles will be emphasized as well."

"The personification of America through the Bald Eagle as our national symbol will also receive attention, beginning with the American colonies' earliest symbol, which was not an eagle, but an Indian maiden, through the adoption of the great seal embodying the Bald Eagle as the central feature, in 1782. Dr. Murphy will then demonstrate how the Bald Eagle was utilized extensively in various forms of arts and during the post-colonial period, when it was thoroughly identified with the enterprising spirit of the new nation. He will also attempt to show how the eagle has persisted in various aspects of Americana to the present day."

"Turning attention to the relationship between eagles and men today, Dr. Murphy will discuss the concerns and motivations of a cated group of eagle biologists, both professional and amateur, in various parts of the world. This connection he will discuss the establishment of the field; a group of dynamic workers; present day graduate students in biology; and the dedicated amateurs who contribute to this field of study."

"There will be a final summarization of the present status and future prospects of eagles world-wide; with special attention to the two species that inhabit North America. Murphy will indicate what he perceives to be outstanding environmental problems for today, as well as prospects for their future survival and the likelihood that eagles and men continue to interact in a positive way for generations to come."

Folk dancers' tryouts to be staged Tuesday

Tryouts for musicians interested in performing with BYU's International Folk Dancers during this summer
European tour will be held Tuesday.
According to Mary Bee Jensen, director of the group, tryouts will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. in 126 Knight-Mangum Social Hall, Tuesday.
The tryouts will be conducted by the band's director Jerry Jackson.

The main instruments needed are violin, guitar, banjo, mandolin, and bass, according to Mrs. Jensen.
Students who play other instruments, including brass, are encouraged to bring their additional instruments to the tryouts, she said.

Mrs. Jensen said that band director Jackson will form a class for all students interested in playing for the group. Class credit will be given for the class she said. Although only about five musicians are taken with the group on the European tour, additional backup people will be trained and will probably perform with the group during the annual "Christmas Around the World" and the group's fall and spring tours, Mrs. Jensen added.

The group will perform music from several periods of American history, including pioneer dances, exhibition square dances, the Charleston, and the Swing, she said.

The International Folk Dancers have received invitations to perform in Spain, France, Italy, Greece, Poland, and several other countries this year, Mrs. Jensen said. The final decisions on the tour will be made within the next month. The American dances and Western music performed by the folk dancers and the band have been very popular with their European audiences, said Mrs. Jensen.

Students desiring additional information should contact Jerry Jackson at 225-0859, Mrs. Jensen said.

Culture office to sponsor emcee skills workshop

Development of "master of ceremony" skills will be the objective of a workshop sponsored by the Culture Office next Wednesday from 4-6 p.m. in 375 ELWC.

According to Shawna Merrell, culture vice-president, the purpose of the workshop is to provide a learning opportunity for those interested in emcee work. Included in the agenda for the workshop are the following skills: recognizing audiences, how to emcee different types of shows, warming-up an audience, and proper use of the microphone. The workshop is free of charge.

The director of the workshop is Mark Bachan, former master of ceremonies for the Sounds of Freedom. Miss Merrell said, "Mark has a lot of experience and great personality. The Culture Office will use the workshop to find prospective emcee personalities for the upcoming Mormon Arts Ball." She added that "every participant will get a chance to emcee a concert impromptu that evening."

ASBYU WOMEN'S OFFICE

All records aside, cagers set for Utes

By TERRI BELL
Universe Sports Editor

There's a saying going around that when BYU plays Utah, you can throw the stat books out the window. That may prove hard to do when the Cougars take on the Utes at the Special Events Center Saturday at 7:30 p.m.

The game is sold out and will be televised on KUTV-Channel 2.

Utah claimed sole possession of first place in the WAC basketball chase with home victories over New Mexico and UTEP last weekend. The Redskins are now 15-4 on the season and 5-1 in the WAC play. After a 3-3 start, they have won 12 of their last 13 games.

BYU, on the other hand, is "in a slump," according to Coach Frank Arnold. "We'll have to play our best game of the year to beat them. We don't have a chance, otherwise."

The Cougars are sharing the WAC cellar with Arizona State at this stage of the season, with a 1-5 conference mark.

Arnold says his team will be up for the game — "It's automatic. You don't have to get the kids up to play Utah" — but the Cougars are going to have to get some better percentages to overcome the Utes.

The shooting percentage is one of the most important in basketball, says the two-year coach, and in the last few games, that statistic has been one of the Cougars' worst. Against New Mexico they shot 40 per cent, and could only manage 36 per cent against UTEP. Their average in WAC play is .432, while the Utes are averaging .55.8 to lead the conference.

An advantage for the Cougars should be rebounding. BYU is averaging 10 more rebounds a game than their neighbors to the north.

Arnold was unsure Thursday who would start in the matchup. "That's insignificant," he said. "We'll go with the five best players, whatever combination we feel we'll have the best chance with."

He got some good performances out of the starting lineup of Alan Taylor, Jay Cheesman, Glen Roberts, Vance Law and Acott Runia against New Mexico last Saturday, but says practice this week will determine who will be on the court at tip-off tomorrow. "I'm not going to say until the game who will start," he said.

Fans who were around last year will remember the controversial 76-75 Utah win in the Marriott Center, and then the Cougars returned the favor 84-83 in Salt Lake. Prior to BYU's triumph on the Utes' home court, Utah had won six straight. Before that, BYU has won five straight. According to record books from the two schools, the advantage in the series goes to both teams.

The Redskins are lead by junior Jeff Judkins (21.4), and Buster Matheny (18.1), sophomore Greg Deane (14.5) and senior floor general Jeff Jonas (10.8). The other starter is sophomore Earl Williams (6.1).

BYU continues to have four players in double figures. Cheesman is averaging 15.8, while Verne Thompson is at 14.2, Mark Handy at 11.4 and Vance Law is averaging 10.4.

With five of its remaining eight games on the road, the Cougars need to win six to break even in the conference and five to have a winning season overall. Says Ute Coach Jerry Pimm, "We still have eight games to go, and we must take them one at a time, regardless of who we play. We are 5-1...so what? We'll be ignoring the records and remembering what has happened in this series."

So the saying goes. Keep an eye on the record books, but don't depend on them too much.

Forget the Lions, Rams keep Knox

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Chuck Knox said Thursday that he had decided to remain coach of the Los Angeles Rams, and had ended talks with the Detroit Lions regarding their coaching job.

Knox, who has guided the Rams to four consecutive National Football League Western Conference titles, said, "I have decided to stay with the Rams. The organization and the fans have helped me to enjoy thoroughly the last four years in Southern California."

Knox's announcement followed reports that negotiations between Rams' owner Carroll Rosenbloom and William Clay Ford, owner of the Lions, had broken down because of player compensation sought by Rosenbloom.

Ford flew to Los Angeles last week to confer with Rosenbloom about Knox, and the Rams owner said he'd be willing to let the coach go to Detroit if the Rams received ample compensation.

Rosenbloom reportedly was not pleased with the players Detroit offered in exchange for Knox's services.

Rumors regarding the Lions' intention to lure Knox to Detroit began late in December when the team's management told its entire coaching staff that they had "permission to pursue other job opportunities."

Provo-Orem game scheduled tonight

By BRENT NORTON
Universe Sports Writer

One of the greatest rivalries in high school basketball will resume Friday in the Marriott Center when the Provo Bulldogs meet the Orem Tigers at 7:30 p.m.

This game will mark the beginning of the end of one of the most competitive rivalries in the United States. Next year, Provo will be divided into two schools, Provo and Timp View, and both of these schools will move into the 3-A bracket in the state's high school competition. Provo and Orem will play their final game next month.

Over the last six years, games between these teams have been extraordinary. The average attendance has been well over 10,000 fans per game with several one and two point games being played.

So far this season Provo is leading the Region 40 competition with a perfect 4-0 mark. Orem, on the other hand, has a record of 2-2, but the two losses have been by a total of five points.

However, when these two teams meet, all of their past performances can be thrown out the window. According to both Coach Jim Spencer of Provo High and Joel Gardner of Orem, Friday's match-up between the two traditional rivals should be a close, exciting contest.

Leading the No. 1 ranked Bulldogs into the fray will be Greg Bullif, a 6-5 senior guard. Bullif, who is one of the leading scorers in the region, is netting over 18 points a game.

Backing him up will be 6-7 Kevin Nielsen, a fine shooter from around the key, Kim Garrett, a 6-6 jumping jack, Devin Durrant, a 6-5 forward, and Matt Midegley, a 6-0 guard.

Leading Orem will be its two top scorers, Ryan Liddiard, 5-10 guard and Mike Hatch, Orem's 6-5 center. Rounding out the Tiger line-up will be 6-4 Shawn Anderson and 6-5 Paul Stout at forwards and 5-10 Ken Carlson at the other guard.

The Bulldogs are considered a slight favorite, because they have not lost a region game in five years and haven't lost to Orem since 1971.

However, nobody thinks it will be a runaway. As Coach Gardner said, "They are ranked No. 1 in the state and they deserve it. But we feel we have the talent and the size to give them a good game."

Commenting on Provo's success this year Spencer said, "We've been real pleased at the way our team has worked together. I guess you could say that since this is our last year in the 4-A classification, we're more anxious to make it a successful season."

Next year Spencer will remain as Provo's coach while his assistant, Tim Lewis, will take over the reigns at the new Timp View High School.

Tickets can be purchased at either of the two schools or at the Marriott Center ticket office. It is urged that everyone try to get their tickets before Friday to avoid long lines at the Marriott Center.

Ticket prices are $2 for non-high school students and adults, and $5 for a family ticket, which include parents and children of high school age living at home. A preliminary game featuring the sophomores from Provo and Orem will precede the varsity contest. It will begin at 5:30 p.m. in the Marriott Center.

Halftime entertainment will be provided by both the Provo and Orem High drill teams.

2 prep gridders sign letters with Y

Two more all-state football standouts have signed WAC letters of intent to attend BYU.

They are Scott Reber, a running back from St. George and Mark May, a defensive tackle from Oneonta, N.Y. Reber, 6-2, 215, was a star at fullback for Dixie High School while May, 6-6, 265, won area honors at Oneonta High.

May is one of several grid standouts from New York who have visited BYU in recent weeks and each is being heavily recruited by schools in the Northeast.

UA invitational on Y swim list

The BYU swimming team paddles its way south this weekend to compete in the Arizona Invitational Swimming Meet held at McKale Pool in Tucson, Ariz. Coach Tim Powers will take 12 swimmers to the invitational as the Cougars get a look at the strengths of Arizona and Arizona State, the top two WAC finishers of a year ago.

Last Saturday, BYU was edged 58-55 by New Mexico to even the Cougars' dual meet record to 3-3. Pietro Ferracuti set a pool record of 2:11.2 in the 200 breaststroke and divers Tom Bug (one meter) and Steve Sherman (three meters) had their highs of the year with 284.80 and 274.60.

The field at the annual Invitational is the best ever, featuring Long Beach State, the No. 11 team in last year's NCAA championships; WAC powers ASU, BYU and UNM; San Diego State, Nevada-Las Vegas, New Mexico State, Midland College and the two-time defending WAC champion Wildcats.

Tim Shaw of Long Beach State is the standout individual entrant in the meet. Shaw, a former world and American record holder in the long freestyles, competed on the U.S. Olympic team.

Other outstanding individuals include Greg Jagenburg of Long Beach, an Olympian, Piero Ferracuti of BYU, and Olympian from El Salvador; Bruce Bowlsby and John Sorich, both of BYU; Larry Farrar of New Mexico, an NCAA finalist in 1976; and Blake Johnson of ASU, a freshman with the WSC's top times in the backstroke and individual medley this season.

Spikers to host No. 2

BRENT NORTON
Sports Writer

Ball team will meet nationally ranked, runnerup to the NCAA, in a match to be held Saturday afternoon at 1 p.m. on the main gymnasium.

The Cougars are currently ranked No. 2 in the nation, currently are No. 1. Included in that is a 7-0 mark in competition. They earned this by winning the 1976-77 National Volleyball tournament during January.

Of season, BYU Coach Carl Smith can make a good showing in the national.

The four players who are on the Cougar National Team. Another Wave, former BYU student.

Leading the Cat spikers into the match will be Brian Carpenter, Doug Jarman, Darrell Richards, Craig Choate and John Barlow.

McGown, who is a former coach of the U.S. Olympic team, said, "Getting a team of Pepperdine's calibre here is a real opportunity for us. We are anxious to show the fans we play good volleyball here, too."

"It should be a super match. We would like a big crowd there to support our team."

Well known throughout the volleyball circles of the world, McGown also coaches the U.S. Men's National Volleyball team from 1973-76. In 1973 he led the national team to the NORCECA championships, and a trip to Czechoslovakia.

Over the next four years, his teams averaged 40 international matches a year, playing in such places as Japan, Mexico, Russia, all across Europe and Canada. Tickets for Saturday afternoon match are $1 for students and faculty and $2 for the general public.

Craig Choate (4) leaps up to spike the ball after receiving a set from a teammate. The Cougars host Pepperdine Saturday at 1 p.m.

Tracksters to hold indoor invitational

Improved marks are expected this weekend when BYU's track and field team stages its Indoor Invitational inside the George Albert Smith Fieldhouse.

Couch Clarence Robison's Cougars fared well in an open meet last Saturday, and this week's competition will be BYU's last for the performers to qualify for the WAC championships Feb. 11-12 in Albuquerque.

Team representatives from schools in the area will compete in the afternoon session, while the morning will be devoted to high school performers.

One of the Cougar runners, Richard Reid, will miss the distance events because of an injury. But the Cougars are getting some good performances from some newcomers.

Luis Hernandez posted one of the best times of the season with an 8:50.0 clocking in the two-mile last week.

Hernandez was not pushed, or his time might have been better.

Freshman Kim Nielson of Cedar City won the high jump last Saturday with a leap of 6-10, although he came very close with the bar set at seven feet. And in another field event veteran Jim Barry cleared 16-6.

Shot putter Per Nilsson, who was credited with a 55-10½ put last Saturday, should finish first again this Saturday, although Utah's David Hart was not too far behind with a mark of 56-4½.

Next week the Cougars will take a squad of top performers to the WAC indoor championships in Albuquerque. Once again Texas-El Paso will be favored with Arizona State and Brigham Young contending for runner-up honors. The meet is scheduled for Tingley Coliseum in Albuquerque.

Hopefuls lining up for WAC

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — With the University of Arizona and Arizona State University set to leap from the Western Athletic Conference, a crowd of applicants is lining up at the WAC's application gate.

Arizona and ASU have been invited to join the Pacific Eight Conference in 1978. But the presidents of the other WAC schools are holding firm on keeping Arizona and ASU to their football commitments through 1981.

"We were unable to get them to even consider a compromise," Arizona President John Schaefer said after the WAC presidents refused Tuesday night to let the two schools out of their schedules. "We will essentially be independents for at least four years," he said.

But in the meantime, the WAC President's Council, knowing two members are leaving, said it will take applications for expansion until the end of March.

"We hope expansion would proceed as soon as possible after that," said Commissioner Stan Bates. There was no indication how many schools might be accepted, but speculation was that the WAC might become a 10-team league.

Bates said a quick expansion "would alleviate the scheduling problems of Arizona and Arizona State," indicating the Arizona schools may eventually get what they want—the freedom to compete in 1978 for the Rose Bowl berth and Pac-10 crown, as the league will eventually be called.

"We have an application already prepared," said Utah State Athletic Director Ladell Anderson. "We're going to do whatever is necessary to make known our interest." Anderson said adding four teams would compensate nicely for the loss of the Arizona schools.

"We want to actively make something happen," said San Jose State Athletic Director Don Murphy. "I'll be on the next plane to Denver if Stan wants to discuss it."

Murphy also said there has been some discussion of merging the WAC with the Pacific Coast Athletic Association.

Other schools voicing interest, but less enthusiastically, were San Diego State, New Mexico State, Hawaii and the University of Nevada-Las Vegas.

Bates said applications from interested schools would be reviewed for, among other things, the number of Division One sports, the number of scholarships and the attendance at sporting events.

5th-rated Wake Forest looks at ACC, not polls

(AP) — Wake Forest Coach Carl Tacy is thankful that his team does not take basketball polls too seriously.

"We haven't talked about them polls all year," said Tacy Wednesday night after his fifth-rated Deacons defeated Duke 89-80 in an Athletic Coach Conference basketball game.

"We notice the polls, though," he added. "And I think we're looking better than the sixth-place ACC finish predicted for us at the beginning of the season."

Indeed, they are. The Deacons now are 17-2 over-all and lead the tough ACC with a 6-1 record.

Forward Rod Griffin sparked Wake Forest to its latest victory with 28 points.

In other games involving rated teams, Pittsburgh upset No. 12 Cincinnati 65-64 on a 22-foot jump shot by junior Larry Harris at the final buzzer; Arkansas, No. 14, routed Southern Methodist 81-58 in a Southwest Conference game, and 20th-rated Detroit beat Eastern Michigan 87-82.

"The bench told me to take the shot, even if I was double-teamed," said Harris, whose winning basket gave him 31 points for the game.

"We've got to start to believe in ourselves," added Harris after the Battle of the puck at the Buzzards goal

Dave Clark slides the puck over to teammate Dave Hills as the BYU Ice Cats apply pressure to the Bountiful goal. The Ice Cats whipped the Buzzards Tuesday 12-2. They were led by Clark who had four assists and team captain Bob Gerber who put three goals in the net.

Contest sponsored to vote in classic

In efforts of getting the Pizza Hut Basketball Classic balloting started at BYU, the Sports Information Directors office and Pizza Hut are establishing a contest between all organized clubs.

Clubs will be given as many ballots as they need and the one which turns in the most ballots by March eighth wins. Pizza Hut has established a $100 prize.

Two BYU players are in the balloting, forwards Verne Thompson and Jay Cheesman.

All those interested in entering should contact the Sports Information Directors office (ext. 4511).

Borg's racket is business

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Ap Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) — At the tender age of 20, Bjorn Borg is a walking, talking, racket-swinging conglomerate.

His racket arm belongs to Bancroft. His feet belong to Tretorn, his head to a Swedish brewery called Tuborg and his right shoulder to an Scandinavian air line, SAS.

He gets paid handsomely for appearing on the court in the familiar striped attire of Fila and for driving sports cars made by Saab. He is immortalized in stone by a subsidized sculptor and in a syndicated comic strip. He takes it off the top from a tennis shop in Monte Carlo.

But his heart belongs to Mariana. "You would have to say Bjorn is one of the wealthiest 20-year-olds in the world," said Bud Stanner, corporate vice-president for Mark McCormack's International Management Corp., in Cleveland, a sprawling firm which is helping Bjorn get rich quick.

"I wouldn't want to say what he is worth — a millionaire and more."

It was Stanner who orchestrated Borg's latest financial coup — a three-year, $1.5-million contract to play this summer for the Cleveland Nets in World Team Tennis.

One of the provisions is that Borg gets to bring along his pretty fiancée, Mariana Simionescu, 20, of Romania, a promising young tennis player in her own right.

The golden-haired Swede is typical of the manner in which top professional athletes are packaged and sold. They are figuratively cut up and parceled out like choice pieces of beef.

An Unusual Pawn

Game kept Prinze just 'a kid'

(AP) — Freddie Prinze seemed to blossom with an effortless maturity. But when the TV cameras went to the tormented kid from a poor Manhattan who still thought squirt he remained a child in a very adult personal manager, Don DeBlasio, the occasion was a eulogy for the NBC's "Chico and the Man" who took a suicide bullet last Friday. The Freddie Prinze Story looked like the stuff the American Dream is made of — rags to riches by dint of hard work and talent. Expensive, fast cars; Cardin suits; a home in California for his parents; money. An instant celebrity whose trademark “Lookin’ G-o-o-d” seemed to apply to him personally.

In Turmoil

"He was in turmoil, he was suffering such pain," said his friend, entertainer Tony Orlando, at Prinze's funeral. "And yet his audience never knew."

Certainly some of the pain stemmed from his new life. But no clearcut evidence points to his skyrocket success as a direct cause of death. And there were other troubles people point to — troubles with his marriage, with a heavy drug habit, with business arrangements. All these problems were very real to Prince, but friends and associates say the star's personality and outlook on life were probably the underlying reasons for his suicide.

When Freddie Prinze, part Puerto Rican, part Hungarian, was growing up in his poor, ethnically-mixed neighborhood in New York, he was known as a cutup, a likeable, "goofing around type" who did imitations of President Nixon, dropped wet tissues from the rooftops and played at being a disc jockey.

But his boyhood fascination for making people laugh became his way of life — the way he earned his living and the way he often handled personal relationships. The Washington Heights cutup never stopped cutting up.

Alan Bursky, once a roommate of Prinze's in Hollywood, remembers how the childhood love for people sometimes took odd and nasty turns.

"He always slept out in the living room," said Gursky. "One day I told him to make his bed. When I got home that night, Freddie had all the bedsheets strewn out around the apartment."

Italian movie
part of seminar

The BYU Italian Department will hold a seminar today in connection with the International Cinema's showing of Fredrico Fellini's film "Nights of Capria."

James Catano, BYU Italian instructor, said the seminar will feature two speakers, Tad Z. Danielewski, a professor of theater and cinematic arts, and Uti Welker of the BYU Motion Picture Studio.

Get a plant-sitter

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — There are baby-sitters, house-sitters and pet-sitters. Bruce Bouseman wants to be your plant-sitter.

Bouseman, 26, who has 80 houseplants of his own, has started a new service — "The Watched Pot" — that offers to "water, mist, clip, feed and make conversation with your plants while you are on vacation."

He says he will make daily visits to customers' homes; for a weekly fee based on the number of plants; $15 a week for under 80 plants; $20 a week for more than 80; and $25 a week for a greenhouse.

Box-tops to aid retarded kids

Donating Post cereal box-tops will help make available recreational equipment to 83 trainable mentally retarded students at the BYU-Provo Demonstration School.

New recreational equipment has been offered to schools for trainable mentally retarded students by Post Cereals, a brand of the General Foods Corp., according to Cathie Nielsen, school leader in charge of the local collection drive. The schools must provide the correct number of Post box tops in exchange for the equipment.

"If every student at BYU would donate one Post cereal box top, we should be able to reach our goal of 35,825 box tops," Miss Nielsen said.

"The Miracle Fun House that we hope to get, is needed for our students to achieve proper muscle coordination. This house has a rotating barrel in it which provides exercise for students so they can develop useful muscles."

ROTC performers to tour West states

By GORDON JOHNSTON
Universe Staff Writer

"Have Faith in America" will be the theme of BYU's Air Force ROTC performing group,
"Footprints of Freedom," when they start a tour of Nevada and California Saturday that will cover nearly 2,000 miles.

Footprints Advisor Capt. Victor K. Krzymowski, said the group will make nine performances in seven cities, including Elko, Nev. and Sacramento, Modesto, Alameda, Monterey, Merced and Fairfield, Calif.

"They will make their first performance Saturday evening in Elko and they will give a fireside on America after church on Sunday," he said.

The group is composed of 17 Air Force ROTC cadets and 17 members of Angel Flight, the Air Force sponsored women's service group.

"They perform through song, dance and multi-media with the purpose of presenting a message of patriotism," Capt. Krzymowski said.

"Footprints performs a diversity of numbers with narration to adjust to the different types of audiences," he said.

"They sing religious songs like, 'I Am A Child Of God' and 'Love at Home.' There are patriotic songs such as 'The Declaration' and rock songs such as 'I Dig Rock and Roll Music,' as well as country western, nostalgia and folk songs. They also feature quartet and solo numbers."

The standard of Footprints, a song called "High Flight," shows a movie of an Air Force jet flying in the background. "It's really stirring," said Capt.
Krzymowski. "We also have a medley of patriotic songs called, 'Years of Decision,' where we show slides of many great events in America's past."

After performing in Elko, the group will travel to Sacramento for three performances, then go to Modesto for one show. Wednesday night Footprints will put on a 90-minute special at the Alameda Naval Air Station before a military audience, then have a group testimony meeting. "The testimony meeting is really the highlight of the entire tour," Capt.
Krzymowski said.

The next stop after Alameda will be Monterey.
Then they'll travel to Merced, then Fairfield and then back to Provo. At Fairfield, Footprints will tour the C-5, the world's largest aircraft, at Travis Air Force Base, according to Capt. Krzymowski.

"The members of Footprints pay their own way with the money raised at performances," he said.

"They stay at the homes of LDS members while on tour."

Footprints of Freedom was organized in 1969.
Capt. Krzymowski said the name was taken from the Longfellow poem, "A Psalm of Life," in which the

A man who lives out and writes about the things others only dream of gave a BYU audience an idea about how it feels to play basketball with the Celtics or percussion with the New York Philharmonic.

Author George Plimpton made his remarks
Wednesday during the first lecture of the ASBYU Academic Office's American Perspective Lecture series.

He said when he played basketball with the Celtics he "didn't touch the ball all night. I just ran up and down the sidelines."

The 50-year-old author went on to say that his most frightening experience "was playing with the New York Philharmonic. In music, if you make a mistake, you destroy art." On his tour with Leonard Bernstein, he said he invented a new musical term for his technique with percussion called "the Winnipeg Gang."

Although Plimpton has just written a book, "The Plimpton Pugalist," he just finished work on a new book about Muhammad Ali entitled "Shadow Boxing." He said "Ali is a very shy, rather thoughtful individual who suffers from dyslexia," (a mentally caused inability to read.)

He said he had written about so many sports figures because "I'm fascinated by the camaraderie that exists between the players. Through my experiences, I have been able to repeat some of the humor that comes as a result of performing under pressure."

Footprints of Freedom, BYU's Air Force ROTC performing group, will tour nearly 2,000 miles, performing in seven California and Nevada cities.

lives of great men are said to be "footprints on the sands of time."

"Besides instilling patriotism, the group gives cadets leadership experience," said Capt. Krzymowski.
"There is a commander, Robin Brookshy, as well as a vice commander and other positions that give group members a feel for the real Air Force. The members of the group do all the legwork and plan the choreography."

OPINION—COMMENT

Brigham Young University

City's tax inquiry a commendable act

Provo City commissioners should be commended for their actions in taking up the issue of high county property taxes.

According to Mayor Grange, taxes have risen an average of 97 per cent in the county during the past year. In some cases, they rose over 400 per cent. These rising rates have stirred complaints from many county residents, some of whom have filed their taxes under protest.

The commissioners hired an attorney, Dayle Jeffs, to investigate taxing irregularities. Jeffs says taxpayers might be successful in a class action lawsuit which may return $6 million in property taxes or result in a change in who pays the tax bills.

Other alternatives to solving the problem may include legislative channels or having individual citizens who paid taxes under protest file lawsuits.

During the current tax season, citizens are particularly sensitive to tax problems. Often they have problems enough solving their federal 1040 form without finding out property taxes have jumped 97 or even 400 per cent. It is refreshing to know that lawmakers bodies, in particular Provo's City Commission, care enough about the current situation to vigorously move ahead in helping Provo residents to perhaps straighten out the matter and get a rebate.

The city commissioners certainly deserve commendation and thanks from the citizenry for this effort.

Freezing weather flusters economists

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The continued flow of arctic air southward over the industrial heartland of the nation is also paralyzing the analytical powers of many economic forecasters.

Never before have some of them faced quite the challenge they now see before them, a challenge for which there are really no guides in the textbooks and few or no criteria to borrow from earlier studies.

Most other destructive rampages of nature have been brief in duration, such as windstorms and earthquakes, or they have been geographically limited, such as floods, droughts and frosts, or limited to certain crops or industries.

on the Gross National Product, or the total of all goods and services produced in a given period.

Meanwhile, economists who could easily gauge the impact of crop loss resulting from drought or blight are perplexed about how and where to begin measuring the economic impact of the big freeze.

Nevertheless, they are pressed to make their estimates for banks, brokers, manufacturers and others.

Up to now, the major business economists have continued to stick with their earlier forecasts of a steady but unspectacular improvement through much of the year. And some even suggest we are in for a more prolonged period of improvement.

The index of leading economic indicators rose in December for the third straight month, but of even greater significance, it rose by 1.6 per cent, the largest gain in well over a year.

Not restricted

The frigid weather has not been restricted by geography, time or industrial category. It covers two-thirds of the country. It has persisted for four months. It has slowed, shut or otherwise affected every industry that uses any form of energy, natural, human or mechanical.

The total bill, measured in lost production, unemployment, higher fuel bills, destruction of crops and machinery, slowed transportation, impaired health, lowered productivity and educational disruption cannot be calculated.

It is obviously in the many billions of dollars, but confirmation of the rough estimates probably must await reports

Severest weather

But this was before the severest weather. Throughout the fall in October, November and December — temperatures were well below normal through much of the East. And that was before the coldest months.

The question that economic forecasters cannot possibly answer is whether the cold weather will continue. The truth is that the meteorologists can't tell either. About all they can say is that the pattern that produced the cold weather is still holding, and from what they can see it will continue to hold. An opinion.

Fast food on the move: freezers, orders to go

America is fast becoming a nation of people who seldom eat at home.

According to a recent article in the National Observer, supermarkets are presently selling only as much as they did in 1972 in spite of our population growth and prosperity. And yet sales at fast food chains have doubled in five years.

In fact, the National Restaurant Association reports that one of every five meals were eaten away from home 10 years ago. Yet today it's one out of three.

Chances are, if many BYU students were polled, the results would be even higher.

The article pointed out several reasons that may be causing the rise in popularity of "eating out." It said 51 per cent of all households are one- and two-member households and more than half of all married women are employed.

Opponents of fast food chains are proponents of frozen foods. They say convenience is the same when the two ways of eating are compared, and even add that quality is better when it's their frozen food.

The article said that 45 per cent of all homes have free-standing freezer units, which should certainly aid the frozen food manufacturers. And one manufacturer said that frozen fried chicken, supplemented with frozen vegetables and potatoes, saves the consumer 45 per cent over similar food from a fast-food outlet, and is 32 per cent cheaper than fast-food hamburger.

The frozen food company is even starting an advertising campaign encouraging people to eat in.

Has America become a nation of people who rely on convenience foods? Have we reached a point where we depend on them? And finally, whatever happened to good old-fashioned home cooking?

Chamber music opens new world to listener

Those restless souls looking for exciting new worlds to explore might do well to look into chamber music.

CHAMBER music? A bunch of old fuddy-duddies in tuxedos playing incomprehensible music is the image of chamber music that often springs into students' minds. But much chamber music is simple, exciting, and lively — and it is neither written for or by the Geritol generation.

For example, Franz Schubert's "Trout" Quintet (so named not because it is fishy music but rather because it incorporates a melody used in a Schubert song about a trout) was written when the composer was 22. According to music critic Martin Bookspan in his book "101 Masterpieces of Music and Their Composers," the "Trout" Quintet is "an ideal introduction to chamber music."

Another chamber work of Schubert, the Quintet in C Major, is the work which Bookspan says he would want to take with him if he had to be stranded on a desert isle. And about this same work, the great pianist Arthur Schnabel wrote in his autobiography that he would like to be ushered into heaven to the strains of the slow movement. It is a work that has often been regarded as Schubert's greatest.

Many students are familiar with the symphonies of Beethoven and Brahms, but the chamber music of these giants is perhaps even greater than their symphonic work. Beethoven's "Archduke" Piano Trio and Brahms' "Clarinet Quintet" are chamber masterpieces which are excellent starting points for the inexperienced chamber music listener.

But most inexperienced listeners do not remain that way for long. Once they start listening to chamber music, they find it more and more exciting to listen to new selections. A whole new musical world has opened up to them.

Students who wish to sample a chamber piece need not invest any money in records — at least not at first. The BYU library has many chamber recordings available for listening. Those who prefer to listen at home might try some of the records available at the Provo Public Library.

Just one word of caution, however. Be prepared to have your friends consider you a buddy-duddy.

Clinic for dependents

Editor:

Although a single student, I am concerned about the large number of BYU student dependents (more specifically, young children) who, lacking proper medical attention in the early stages of illness, develop severe problems which can only be helped through hospitalization and costly doctor bills. What great sadness it must bring to a young BYU couple struggling to make ends meet, who must stand helplessly by as their son or daughter fights for his life or good health. The great tragedy of such an experience is that, in many cases, serious illness could have been avoided if proper medical attention had been given the child in the early stages of his illness.

Yet it is not always the parents who are totally to blame. They simply do not have the money to run their child to the doctor every time he comes down with a cold or sore throat. It even costs too much to go to the Health Center on campus!

Why hasn't a health clinic for BYU student dependents been established in our community? Are we that insensitive to the needs of our fellow students? BYU's administration says that such a center is impractical for the campus because of limitations on space and funds. However, there still exists a problem which we cannot afford to ignore forever!

In years past a student committee, sponsored by student government, approached the administration with a plan for expanding our then inadequate library facilities. The result? A beautiful new addition to our library financed in part by students!

Why doesn't student government move to establish medical help for struggling BYU families? Certainly that would be a much greater memorial to their service in office than all the "President's Pages" ever printed!

Page deteriorating

Editor:

Within the past two semesters, I have seen the editorial page deteriorate. I am not condemning students for their opinions, rather, I am calling for more mature, thought-laden articles.

I have found that some editorials, such as the ones on kissing, walking on the grass and the "Silver Streak" review, have shown a sheltered train of thought.

I respect the right of every person to voice an opinion, and I do not mean any ridicule to the student body, the Universe or BYU. I simply think we need to be aware of the world outside this school.

Tax codes scream for a real revamp

It's tax time again, and many students will need to file as many as three income tax forms. Not only that. The forms are growing increasingly complex.

Anyone living in Utah for only part of a year, also needs to file a tax form for income earned in their home state. And it is not only the number of forms that make 1977 tax time trying, but the difficult instructions as well.

Federal tax forms carry a caution—"There have been numerous substantial changes in the law affecting 1976 returns. Please read thoroughly and carefully."

The IRS commissioner states that, "Completing your return this year could be more difficult."

Some of the changes are beneficial and may represent a cut for low wage earners. However, with each passing year, new laws only add to the current complexity of tax laws and forms.

Hints to conserve

Editor:

With the current realization that energy and water supplies are in grave danger, many people are concerned. We have even been called upon to fast and pray for improvement of our energy and water situation, but as we know, faith without works is dead and unless we work to conserve energy and water, we cannot expect our prayers to be considered sincere. I feel that we do not have to wait for a terrible crisis to start having a real conservation effort. For this reason, I list some practical ways we can conserve energy and water NOW with minimal sacrifice.

1. Turn thermostat down to 65 degrees — lower when you are gone.
2. Do not run water until it's cold for a cold drink. Keep chilled water in the refrigerator.
3. Bathe little children together.
4. Limit your shower to three minutes.
5. Do not fill the tub more than one-fourth full.
6. Do not run the tub while you brush your teeth.
7. Do not run the dishwasher unless it's full.
8. Do not wash without a full load.
9. Share rides for school and church meetings.
10. Turn TV and lights off when you leave the room.

However simple these suggestions sound, they take conscientious effort and true blue desire! I would like to see the Universe become a forum for ideas on what we can all do to conserve. My environmental biology instructor says people will not conserve energy and water until they are faced with enormous price hikes or strict laws. Let's prove him wrong.
